Statement of Affairs

1. STRUCTURE AND FUNCTIONS

THIS STATEMENT was prepared in pursuance of Section 14 (1) (a) of the Freedom of Information Act, 1989. Its aim is to provide an overview of the activities of the Community Relations Commission For a multicultural NSW and to provide to the public or clients of the Commission an indication of when Freedom of Information (FOI) procedures may, or need not, be necessary.

Establishment

The Community Relations Commission was established in terms of the Community Relations Commission and Principles of Multiculturalism Act 2000 and commenced operation on 13 March 2001.

The Community Relations Commission and Principles of Multiculturalism Act 2000 provides for the appointment by the Governor of up to eleven Commissioners. The Commission consisted of one full-time Chairperson, one part-time Deputy Chairperson, and nine part-time Commissioners. Commissioners are appointed on the basis of their qualifications, experience, knowledge and sensitivity to multicultural issues.

The Community Relations Commission is responsible for promoting community harmony, participation and access to services so that the contribution of cultural diversity to New South Wales is recognised and celebrated.

Organisation

In order to carry out the functions prescribed under the Community Relations Commission and Principles of Multiculturalism Act 2000, the Commission operates as an administrative office under the Public Sector Management Act. Its structure includes: Community Relations Service, Government Relations Service, Regional Services, Business Services, Language Services and Financial and Corporate Services.

In addition, section 20 of the Act allows for the establishment of committees of commissioners or commissioners and other persons as required to assist the Commission to carry out its functions.

For the financial year ended 30 June 2009 the Commission's total expenses were $18.5 million. This was funded by total government contributions of $13.0 million, and user charges and other revenue of $5.5 million. The Commission's operating expenses comprised $14.1 million for employee-related costs and $2.5 million in other operating expenses.

In the 2008/09 financial year the Commission had a budget of $1.6 million for grants.

Advisory committees and sub-committees

Refer also to the diagram Organisational Structure – Boards and Committees.

Regional Advisory Councils

The Commission operates ten Regional Advisory Councils to enable enhanced community input into policy formulation and community comment on prevailing regional issues. They are convened by part-time commissioners and their recommendations are brought to the attention of the Commission.

Structure and Activities of the Community Relations Commission For a multicultural NSW

Refer also to the diagram Organisation Structure – Functional.

■ Business Services

Business Services manages and controls the linkages between the Commission's knowledge base, technological system and infrastructure and organisational performance. It undertakes strategic policy development and planning, promotes innovative initiatives and implements performance management and reporting. Its functions and responsibilities include:

- corporate and strategic planning
- performance management, training, and compliance reporting
- quality management
- information, records, data and knowledge management
- program management and administration (funding and language testing)
- project management
- electronic business
- secretariat support
- National Multicultural Marketing Awards
- ethnic media reporting
- public affairs and publications.

■ Community Relations Service

The Community Relations Service promotes the development and implementation of community relations policies across the spectrum of government activities, as outlined in the Community Relations Commission and Principles of Multiculturalism Act 2000.

The Community Relations Service develops model projects with communities and partnership organisations based on the goals of the Act.

■ Executive Services

Executive Services works in collaboration with the Chairperson to manage communication with Ministerial offices and oversees the preparation of a range of ministerial briefings and consultation forums. It also conducts a range of special projects and advises on partnership opportunities that carry forward the work of the Commission and government policy, particularly in relation to the State Plan.

■ Financial and Corporate Services

The Financial and Corporate Services Division comprises the finance, human resources and accommodation units. Responsibilities include:

- budgeting and control
- financial management and reporting
- risk management and the coordination of internal audit
- procurement
- asset management including insurance
- accommodation and security functions of the Commission
- human resources and industrial relations services
- information communications and technology

■ Government Relations Service

Through the Multicultural Policies and Services Program (formerly Ethnic Affairs Priorities Statement or EAPS), the Government Relations unit implements the Commission's legislated responsibility to assist and assess public authorities in observing the Principles of Multiculturalism. It also prepares policy advice and correspondence as required, and briefings and speech notes for the Minister, the Premier or their representatives when attending community events.

■ Language Services

Language Services provides comprehensive interpreting and translation services throughout NSW in over 85 languages and dialects including Auslan in order to facilitate equal participation and access to government services within a multicultural NSW.

The Community Relations Commission employs over 650 professionally recognised and accredited casual interpreters/translators. Services are available to all Government departments, agencies, private and commercial organisations, community groups and individuals. Services are provided primarily on a user-pays basis, with exemption granted on a needs basis. Language Services provides:

- access to interpreters 24 hours a day, seven days a week at the cost of a local call on 1300 651 500
- counter service for translations, open Monday to Friday 8:00 am to 5:00 pm in Sydney CBD. Regional offices are available in Wollongong and Newcastle
- TTY (telephone typewriter) number 8255 6758
- electronic transactions via LanguageLink
- communication with casual panellists via LanguageLink
- booking an interpreter on-line.

■ Regional Services

This division coordinates and manages ten Regional Advisory Councils which cover the Albury, Central West, Griffith, Hornsby and Central Coast, Hunter, Illawarra, Macarthur-Liverpool, Nepean-Blacktown, New England and Northern regions.

The councils assist the Commission in its interaction with people representing the multicultural community in rural and regional areas. The councils advise on matters affecting their specific regions of the state. Membership of the councils comprises relevant local and regional government agencies and individuals to reflect the diversity of each region.

Regional Relations Service develops strategies and works in partnership with local community organisations and government agencies to address identified regional issues. This division keeps the Commission informed of any regional developments.

Planning mechanisms

The following planning mechanisms are in place for the Community Relations Commission:

- the 2007-2012 Corporate Plan identifies the goals of the Commission and outlines strategies to ensure the achievement of the corporate objectives and the relevance to the Government's community relations objectives articulated in the Community Relations Commission and Principles of Multiculturalism Act 2000 and the White Paper Cultural Harmony, The Next Decade 2002-2012
- the Results and Services Plan provides a summary of the corporate objectives for service delivery. The Commission reviews the plan annually to ensure alignment of the Commission's priorities and targets with the State Plan
- strategic plans provide direction and a consistent focus in key areas of management including risk, information and communication technology, information and records and business operations

- each division develops an operational plan to ensure corporate objectives are achieved. The plans demonstrate how corporate strategies are to be implemented.
- meetings of the Commission are convened monthly, or more often if required, to determine policy and priorities
- weekly meetings of senior executive staff play a major role in planning the day to day activities of the Commission
- the White Paper, Cultural Harmony, The Next Decade 2002 - 2012 contains the Community Relations Plan of Action 2012. The White Paper sets the directions for community relations and the implementation of the Principles of Multiculturalism by NSW Government agencies until 2012.

The Plan of Action 2012 contains the four key objectives which flow from the principles of multiculturalism and articulate the Government's aims and the results expected from Government agencies. Key objectives are:

- leadership
- community harmony
- access and equity within a framework of social justice obligations
- economic and cultural opportunities.

To ensure the timely and efficient implementation of the Community Relations Action Plan 2012, the Government requires key agencies to provide their Multicultural Policies and Services Program to the Commission. Each Multicultural Policies and Services Program will indicate the recent achievements of the agency in implementing key objectives, as well as foreshadowing the initiatives that will be undertaken.

To ensure that Multicultural Plans are publicly accessible and fully implemented into the core business of all NSW government agencies, the Government requires that all NSW agencies, except those with 200 or fewer equivalent full-time staff, provide in their annual reports a statement of Multicultural Policies and Services achievements and foreshadowed activities for the following year. Agencies with 200 or fewer equivalent full-time staff will be required to report on a three yearly cycle.

Furthermore, the Commission is required to annually produce a report to Parliament on the state of community relations in New South Wales.

- an annual community relations symposium is the major consultative event on the NSW multicultural calendar. The Commission organises symposia as part of its legislative responsibility to consult systematically and widely with the people of New South Wales.

The symposia invite participation from key community organisations in rural, regional and metropolitan NSW.

Criteria for measuring the Commission's performance

The Commission is sensitive to community response to its policy decisions. Community Relations Service staff provide information on community reaction.

The corporate plan outlines goals and strategies of the Commission for the period from 2007 to 2012. The annual report provides feedback against the corporate plan using pre-determined performance indicators.

The Results and Services Plan reports key performance in service delivery. The plan provides measures and costing for each service group. It forms part of the annual budget submission of the Commission.

In the interests of customer service, the Commission has in place mechanisms to monitor performance in meeting customer expectations.

Language Services monitors standards for translation and interpreting by meeting with and networking closely with major clients. This provides a clear indication of customer needs and satisfaction with services. Language Services also actively recruits interpreters/translators in rare and emerging languages.

The Commission's MediaLink ethnic press reporting service provides feedback on community views and reaction to programs and other initiatives.

Funding assistance to community organisations is provided by the Commission through the Community Development Grants Program. All grant recipients enter into a funding agreement with the Commission. Part of the acquittal process for community development projects is the submission of completed Service Providers Survey and Client Survey forms. These are compiled and a report is provided to the Commission during the planning process. Funded organisations are also required to submit a financial and written project report.

2. EFFECT OF THE COMMISSION'S FUNCTIONS ON MEMBERS OF THE PUBLIC

The Commission's functions affect the public in the following ways:

- the provision of interpreter and translation services has immediate benefit for non-English speaking clients of the Commission both in personal matters and in their dealings with government departments
- community relations policies and programs in the NSW public sector are based on the Community Relations Commission and Principles of Multiculturalism Act 2000 which incorporates four principles of multiculturalism and makes chief executive officers of public sector agencies responsible for the implementation of the principles

- the Act seeks to ensure that the public sector is responsive to the needs of, and the opportunities created by, a culturally diverse society
- the Commission's community relations programs are an avenue for bringing the needs of community groups to the attention of the government
- the Commission accepts submissions on matters relating to community relations, and is prepared to examine them in the context of Government policy.

3. ARRANGEMENTS FOR PUBLIC PARTICIPATION IN POLICY FORMULATION

The Commission welcomes the comments of the public on issues relating to community relations and service delivery. This is achieved through the activities of its Regional Advisory Councils, the conduct of seminars and forums, and the distribution of documents for public discussion.

Community members of Regional Advisory Councils are appointed for three years.

4. DESCRIPTION OF THE TYPES OF DOCUMENTS HELD BY THE COMMISSION

Commission reports and publications are available on a range of matters such as religious development in NSW, and the keynote address by Her Excellency Professor Marie Bashir AO, Governor of New South Wales.
